Design Thinking is not an exclusive property of designers—all great innovators in literature, art,	LEGO Serious Play (LSP) is a powerful tool to enhance innovation and performance in any organisation. It deepens the reflection process and	Imagine a National library of the future - how to design physical and virtual spaces that create

music, science, engineering, and business have practised it. It is the very right time to start practising it at the Libraries. Design Thinking is an iterative process in which we seek to understand the user, challenge assumptions, and redefine problems in an attempt to identify alternative strategies and solutions that might not be instantly apparent with our initial level of understanding. At the same time, Design Thinking provides a solution-based approach to solving problems. You can use it to develop better programs, services, spaces, and systems at your library. We also believe you can create impact with design thinking in a single day	supports an effective dialogue between team members. LSP offers an innovative way to foster creative thinking through team building metaphors of their organizational identities and experiences using LEGO bricks. This methodology offers a unique way to generate new ideas for improving library services and quality of work.	engaging environments? Which are the services and future functions that engage audiences and users that help to survive the wave of changes in today's world? In this workshop we use design thinking approach and mindset to create a toolkit that includes ideas which help national library to stay relevant and serve society's expectations for high-quality library service and physical environment."
